Moore argues that each male archetype consists of three parts: the full and highest expression of the archetype and two bi-polar dysfunctional shadows of the archetype. To better understand this, Moore portrays each archetype as a triangle. Here's an example of the King archetype thusly illustrated:

The King Archetype

The bottom corners of the triangle represent the bi-polar shadow-split in the archetypal Self. The goal of each man, according to Moore, is to reconcile and integrate these two bi-polar shadows in order to attain the fullest expression of the archetype as represented at the top of the triangle. _---

----- In the Grail myth the Fisher King is wounded in the groin or genitalia so the realm lies fallow. This is reminiscent of the broken sword. -----

Sauron was an acolyte of Melkor who once collaborated with Ungoliant
The vital life force energy is consumed like Ungoliant the spider who sucks up all the Light becoming grotesque & bloated yet still ravenous eating until she consumes herself.

As Gollum does when he melts with the Ring in the fires of Mt. Doom. Tolkien imagines Evil destroying itself in the end, but only after the ‘Men of the West’ step up to protect & defend “all that is green & good in this world”.

Sauron as the Shadow King/Evil serves Melkor the member of the Valar who did not want to harmonize rather establish discordant music of his own. This is how the Shadow operates in the psyche it wants to destroy all that is good in you.

Fire & heat often accompany an archetypal possession.....Sauron/Balrog/Mt. Doom
Volcano:

"When I use descriptive terms svuoc/hcanso draagnodn to describe archetypal energy it's because it tends to feel hot; being flooded with archetypal energy can literally feel like a fire in your nervous system. When we are sufficiently initiated and mature to deal with such energies, they can be properly contained and channeled, leading to rapid growth, and an expansion of our nervous system. But when our ego structure is wobbly, which for some people is often, for others just sometimes, and for a few always, the ego fails to filter these fiery energies properly, and it starts scorching our psyche." <https://www.inner-throne.com/blog/the-facebook-archetype-chronicles-part-1/>

Women have done a lot of the deep work going to the Underworld - When In-anna returns from the Underworld she turns the eye of death upon Dumuzi her consort whereby he must go to the Underworld in her place. When the mother's die of grief the men eventually realize they too must know the Deep & hold the balance of Life & Death in harmony with the Feminine.

The people we see in positions of power like pm's, presidents etc. are actors playing a role for the public while they serve the interests of their masters ie psychopaths, bankers gangsters & criminals. I suspect Donald Trump is a gangster like all the rest of them but he's not a very good actor at least not for the role of the Statesman instead he is as R. David Steele explains "an accidental president". He wasn't supposed to win it was all planned for Hillary (ref) think of gang turf warfare in expensive suits. Trump plays the role of the Trickster whereby he is the Shadow King to those who see him that way & the Good King to those that see him as such.

No one really knows who these people are anyway. We know them only via the reflections of the media.
